

The Best of Portland

Situated at the confluence of the Willamette and Columbia rivers, Portland, Oregon, with a population of roughly two million in the metropolitan area, is a city of discreet charms. That the city claims a rose garden as one of its biggest attractions should give you an idea of just how laid-back this city is. Sure, Portlanders are just as attached to their cellphones and PDAs as residents of other major metropolitan areas, but this is the City of Roses, and people still take the time to stop and smell the flowers. Spend much time here, and you, too, will likely feel the city's leisurely pace seeping into your bones.

While nearby Seattle, Washington, has zoomed into the national consciousness, Portland has, until recently, managed to dodge the limelight and the problems that come with skyrocketing popularity. For many years now, Portland has looked upon itself as a small, accessible city, vaguely European in character. Clean and friendly are the two terms that crop up most often in descriptions of the city. However, as word has spread about overcrowding in Seattle, people looking for the good life and affordable housing have turned to Portland, which is now experiencing the same sort of rapid growth that Seattle began going through more than a decade ago.

Portland does not have any major tourist sights. Instead, it is a city of quiet charms that must be searched for and savored—the shade of the stately elms in the South Park Blocks, the tranquility of the Japanese Garden, the view from the grounds of Pittock Mansion, the miles of hiking trails in Forest Park. Sure, there's a good art museum and a world-class science museum, but these are not nearly as important to the city's citizenry as the many parks and public gardens. Not only does Portland claim beautiful rose gardens, the most authentic Japanese garden in North America, and the largest classical Chinese garden in the country, but it also can lay claim to both the world's smallest city park and the largest forested urban park in the country.

The city's other claim to fame is as the nation's microbrew capital. Espresso may be the beverage that gets this town going in the morning, but it is microbrewed beer that helps the city maintain its mellow character. There are so many brewpubs here in Portland that the city has been nicknamed Munich on the Willamette. Wine bars are also popular hangouts, which shouldn't come as a surprise, considering how close the city is to the Willamette Valley wine country.

Portland itself may be short on things for visitors to do, but the city's surroundings certainly are not. Within a 1½- to 2-hour drive from Portland, you can be strolling a Pacific Ocean beach, walking beside a waterfall in the Columbia Gorge, hiking on Mount Hood (a dormant volcano as picture-perfect as Mt. Fuji), driving through the Mount St. Helens blast zone, or sampling world-class pinot noirs in the Oregon wine country. It is this proximity to the outdoors that makes Portland a great city to use as a base for exploring some of the best of the Northwest.

1 The Most Unforgettable Travel Experiences

- Strolling the Grounds of the Japanese Garden: This is the best Japanese garden in the United States, perhaps the best anywhere outside of Japan. My favorite time to visit is in June when the Japanese irises are in bloom. There's no better stress-reducer in the city. See p. 87.
- Beer Sampling at Brewpubs: They may not have invented beer here in Portland, but they certainly have turned it into an art form. Whether you're looking for a cozy corner pub or an upscale taproom, you'll find a brewpub where you can feel comfortable sampling local brewmeisters' concoctions. See "Brewpubs" in chapter 9.
- Driving and Hiking in the Gorge: No matter what time of year, the drive up the Columbia Gorge is spectacular, and there are dozens of easily accessible hiking trails throughout the gorge. If you've got time to spare, take the scenic highway; if not, take I-84. On either route, be sure to pull off at Multnomah Falls. For an alternative point of view, drive the Washington side of the river and stop to hike to the top of Beacon Rock. See section 1 of chapter 10, "Side Trips from Portland."
- Concerts at the Schnitz: The Arlene Schnitzer Concert Hall, home to the Oregon Symphony, is a restored 1920s movie palace and is the city's most impressive place to attend a performance. Even if the show doesn't meet your expectations, you can enjoy the classic architectural details. See p. 112.

- Summertime Concerts at the Oregon Zoo: Summertime in Portland means partying with the pachyderms. Throughout the summer, you can catch live music at the zoo's amphitheater. Musical styles include blues, rock, bluegrass, folk, Celtic, and jazz. Often, for just the price of zoo admission, you can catch the concert and tour the zoo (if you arrive early enough). Picnics are encouraged, but no alcohol is allowed into the zoo (however, beer and wine are on sale during concerts). See p. 114.
- Summer Festivals at Waterfront Park: Each summer, Tom McCall Waterfront Park, which stretches along the Willamette River in downtown Portland, becomes the staging ground for everything from Rose Festival events to the Oregon Brewers Festival. Some festivals are free and some have small cover charges, but all are lots of fun. See p. 81.
- Wine Tasting in the Nearby Wine Country: Within less than an hour's drive of Portland there are dozens of wineries that are open to the public on a regular basis. Most of these wineries specialize in pinot noir and pinot gris, and many produce wines of superior quality. The chance to spend an afternoon wine tasting is one of the best reasons to visit Portland. See p. 139.

- Avalon Hotel & Spa (0455 SW Hamilton Court; ☎ 888/556-4402 or 503/802-5800): Located just south of downtown Portland, along a wooded section of the Willamette River waterfront, the Avalon is not only one of the most luxurious hotels in the city, but it also has its own spa and boasts stylishly modern decor. See p. 44.

- Hotel Vintage Plaza (422 SW Broadway; ☎ 800/243-0555 or 503/228-1212): If you're looking for the most romantic room in town, book a starlight room at the Vintage Plaza. Located on one of the hotel's upper floors, these romantic rooms are basically solariums with curving walls of glass that let you lie in bed and gaze up at the stars. Just be sure to come in the summer when there aren't as many clouds in the sky. See p. 46.
- RiverPlace Hotel (1510 SW Harbor Way; ☎ 800/227-1333 or 503/228-3233): Although it's only a few blocks from downtown businesses, this boutique hotel wedged between the Willamette River and Tom McCall Riverfront Park feels a world away from the city. In summer the park hosts countless festivals, and if you book the right room, you can have a box seat for a concert in the park. See p. 47.

3 The Best Moderately Priced Hotels

- Four Points by Sheraton Portland Downtown (50 SW Morrison; ☎ 800/368-7764 or 503/221-0711): Although it is totally unassuming from the outside, the Four Points, with its contemporary interior decor, is a surprisingly stylish and economically priced hotel. Waterfront Park and the Willamette River are just across the street, so you've got a great deal (if you can reserve far enough in advance to get a low rate). See p. 49.
- Homewood Suites by Hilton Vancouver/Portland (701 SE Columbia Shores Blvd., Vancouver; ☎ 800/CALL-HOME or 360/750-1100): Although it is located in Vancouver, Washington, 20 minutes from downtown Portland, this hotel is a good bet for families. Guest rooms are more like apartments, and rates include breakfast and a big spread of evening appetizers. There's also a 5-mile-long paved riverside trail across the street. See p. 54.
- Inn @ Northrup Station (2025 NW Northrup St.; ☎ 800/224-1180 or 503/224-0543): If you're short on cash but want to stay someplace that reflects your taste for contemporary styling, then the Inn @ Northrup Station should be your first choice in town. Not only is this place cool and colorful, but there are great restaurants and bars within just a few blocks. See p. 50.
- Jupiter Hotel (800 E. Burnside St.; ☎ 877/800-0004 or 503/230-9200): This renovated motel in inner southeast Portland is the new hotel of choice for cash-strapped art-school hipsters when they come to Portland to check out the nightlife scene. To make the scene at one of the city's hippest nightclub's, hotel guests need only walk across the courtyard to the Doug Fir Lounge. See p. 53.

- The Lakeshore Inn (210 N. State St., Lake Oswego; ☎ 800/215-6431 or 503/636-9679): How about a waterfront motel in Portland's most prestigious suburb for under $80? Try the Lakeshore Inn, a small motel right on Lake Oswego with a swimming pool on a dock. The catch is that the hotel is 7 miles from downtown Portland. See p. 56.
- McMenamins Edgefield (2126 SW Halsey St., Troutdale; ☎ 800/669-8610 or 503/669-8610): What can you say about a hotel that's located in a renovated poor farm and has a brewery, winery, distillery, movie theater, and golf course? Cheers! At McMenamins Edgefield, on the eastern edge of the Portland metro area, a local brewpub empire has created one of the most unusual lodgings in the state. See p. 55. The affiliated McMenamins Kennedy School, 5736 NE 33rd Ave. (☎ 888/249-3983 or 503/249-3983), is very similar and closer to downtown Portland. See p. 53.

4 The Most Unforgettable Dining Experiences

- Bijou Café (132 SW Third Ave.; ☎ 503/222-3187): Organic coffee, eggs from free-range chickens, buckwheat pancakes, oyster hash, and brioche French toast are the sort of menu offerings that have made this downtown breakfast place a perennial favorite of Portlanders. See p. 63.
- Bluehour (250 NW 13th Ave.; ☎ 503/226-3394): This utterly stylish restaurant is one of the linchpins of the trendy Pearl District, the sort of place locals frequent in order to see and be seen. The menu includes such staples as caviar and foie gras but also delves into far more creative fare. See p. 63.
- Caprial's Bistro and Wine (7015 SE Milwaukie Ave.; ☎ 503/236-6457): There aren't a lot of neighborhood restaurants that can boast of having a celebrity chef in the kitchen, but at Caprial's, in the Sellwood neighborhood of southeast Portland, you just might recognize chef Caprial Pence from TV shows and cookbooks. See p. 70.
- Chart House (5700 SW Terwilliger Blvd.; ☎ 503/246-6963): The Chart House may be part of an upscale restaurant chain, but the view from the hillside setting south of downtown Portland just can't be beat. Down at the foot of the hill is the Willamette River, and off over the rooftops and treetops of Portland are Mount Hood and Mount St. Helens. See p. 68.

- Higgins (1239 SW Broadway; ☎ 503/222-9070): Chef Greg Higgins pushes the envelope of contemporary cuisine here at his eponymously named restaurant, but he also sprinkles the menu with plenty of familiar comfort foods. Sample some of Portland's best food in the formal dining room or in the casual back-room bar area. See p. 60.
- Huber's (411 SW Third Ave.; ☎ 503/228-5686): This is the oldest restaurant in Portland, and whether it's Thanksgiving or not, this place specializes in turkey dinners. It also specializes in Spanish coffee, a potent liquor-laced pick-me-up. Be sure to get a table in the old room with the stained-glass ceiling. See p. 61.
- Jake's Famous Crawfish (401 SW 12th Ave.; ☎ 503/226-1419): Get 'em while they're hot at Jake's, where crawfish are the stars of the menu. This classic seafood restaurant has been around for almost a century and serves truckloads of crawfish every year. There are plenty of other good seafood dishes on the menu as well. See p. 61.
- Newport Bay Restaurant (0425 SW Montgomery St.; ☎ 503/227-3474): The food at this restaurant may not be superlative, but the setting—floating in the Willamette River—certainly is. Walk down the long dock, take a seat on the patio, and have a front-row seat for the comings and goings of boats on the river. See p. 62.

5 The Best Things to Do for Free (or Almost)

- Sunset from Council Crest: Portland is a city backed by hills that reach 1,000 feet high, and the view from atop Council Crest is the finest in the city. From here you can see mounts Rainier, St. Helens, Adams, and Hood. The view is particularly memorable at sunset. Bring a picnic.
- Hanging Out at Powell's: They don't call Powell's the City of Books for nothing. This bookstore, which sells both new and used books, is so big you have to get a map at the front door. No matter how much time I spend here, it's never enough. A large cafe makes it easy to while away the hours. See p. 107.
- Free Rides on the Vintage Trolleys: Tri-Met buses, MAX light-rail trolleys, and the Portland Streetcar are all free within a large downtown area known as the Fareless Square. That alone should be enough to get you on some form of public transit while you're in town, but if you're really lucky, you might catch one of the vintage trolley cars. There aren't any San Francisco-style hills, but these old trolley cars are still fun to ride. See p. 34.

- People-Watching at Pioneer Courthouse Square: This is the heart and soul of downtown Portland, and no matter what time of year or what the weather, people gather here. Grab a latte at the Starbucks and sit by the waterfall fountain. In summer there are frequent concerts here, and any time of year you might catch a rally, performance, or installation of some kind. Don't miss the Weather Machine show at noon. See chapter 6.
- An Afternoon at the Portland Saturday Market: This large arts-and-crafts market is an outdoor showcase for hundreds of the Northwest's creative artisans. You'll find fascinating one-of-a-kind clothes, jewelry, kitchenwares, musical instruments, and much, much more. The food stalls serve great fast food, too. See p. 110.
- First Thursday Art Walk: On the first Thursday of every month, Portland goes on an art binge. People get dressed up and go gallery-hopping from art opening to art opening. There are usually hors d'oeuvres and wine available, and sometimes there's even live music. The galleries stay open until 9pm. See p. 105.
- Stopping to Smell the Roses: Portland is known as the City of Roses, and at the International Rose Test Garden in Washington Park, you can find out why. This is a test garden for new varieties of roses, so you'll probably have to wait a few years before you can buy your favorite rose plant here. See p. 86.

6 The Best Outdoor Activities

- Kayaking Around Ross Island: Seattle may be considered the sea-kayaking capital of the Northwest, but Portland's not a bad kayaking spot itself. You can paddle on the Columbia or Willamette river, but my favorite easy paddle is around Ross Island in the Willamette River. You can even paddle past the submarine at the Oregon Museum of Science and Industry and pull out at Tom McCall Waterfront Park. See p. 95.
- Mountain Biking Leif Erikson Drive: Forest Park is the largest forested city park in the country, and running its length is the unpaved Leif Erikson Road. The road is closed to cars and extends for 12 miles. Along the way, there are occasional views of the Columbia River. This is a fairly easy ride, without any strenuous climbs. See p. 93.

- Hiking Forest Park's Wildwood Trail: Forest Park is the largest wooded urban park in the country, and within its boundaries, there are nearly 75 miles of hiking trails. The Wildwood Trail stretches for nearly 30 miles, from one end of the park to the other, and while you probably won't have time to hike the entire trail, there are lots of shorter loops possible. See p. 95.
- Hiking and Skiing on Mount Hood: Less than an hour from Portland, Mount Hood offers year-round skiing and hiking. Timberline Lodge, high on this dormant volcano's slopes, was built by the WPA during the Great Depression and is a showcase of craftsmanship. See section 1 of chapter 10, "Side Trips from Portland."
- Picnicking at the Washington Park Arboretum: Picnicking may not be a particularly strenuous outdoor activity, but an alfresco meal on a grassy hillside surrounded by rare and unusual trees sure is memorable. Before your picnic, you can work up an appetite by hiking some of the arboretum's 12 miles of trails. See p. 84.

7 The Best Activities for Families

- Going Below Decks in a Real Submarine: At the Oregon Museum of Science and Industry (OMSI), you can poke around inside the USS Blueback, a retired Navy submarine that was used in the filming of The Hunt for Red October. The sub is now permanently docked in the Willamette River outside the museum's back door. See p. 82.
- Virtual Parachuting: At the World Forestry Center Discovery Museum, you and the kids can pretend to be smoke jumpers parachuting into the woods to put out a forest fire. The virtual parachute exhibit lets you strap into a harness and try to hit a video target on the floor. See p. 88.
- Flying Over the Water: Giant jet boats roar up the Willamette River from the Oregon Museum of Science and Industry to the thundering cascades of Willamette Falls in Oregon City. Along the way, you'll get a unique perspective on Portland life. See p. 91.

- Roller Skating at Oaks Park: At the quaintly old-fashioned Oaks Park Amusement Center, you can roller skate to the accompaniment of a Wurlitzer organ. The skating rink here is the largest wood-floored rink in the West. There are also plenty of thrill rides and arcades See p. 90.
- Riding the Rails in Washington Park: At the Oregon Zoo, you can not only ponder the pachyderms and gaze at grizzlies, you can go for a ride on a scaled-down train that runs between the zoo and the International Rose Test Garden and the Japanese Garden. Near the end of the line with the gardens, you'll also find the Rose Garden Children's Park, a big, colorful playground. See p. 87.
